Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 5-13,32,34,35,46,49,50-53,55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by 5,787,383 to Moroto et al (hereinafter Moroto).

Moroto discloses a toy travel clock comprising an input device configured to accept a mode of transportation and an estimated time of travel between a starting location and destination and an output device configured to graphically display, the starting location, the destination, a hypothetical route connecting the starting location to the destination and a graphical representation of the mode of transportation as an indication of an estimated distance traveled along the hypothetical route (figure 8, column 5 lines 30-39, 40-55 and column 9 lines 49-67 and column 10 lines 1-5), as recited in claim 32.

Moroto discloses a toy travel clock comprising an input device configured to accept an estimated time of travel between a starting location and destination, a distance travel calculator configured to accept an estimated time of travel between a starting location and destination, an output device configured to display an indication of the estimated travel distance wherein the clock is a stand alone device and a storage module being operative to store at least one known destination having an associated known total distance and wherein the input device is configured to accept a respective known destination (column 5 lines 16-39, lines 65-67 and column 6 lines 1-31), as recited in claim 34.

Moroto discloses the known destination is associated with a stored known estimated time of travel between the known starting location and destination (column 6 lines 38-45), as recited in claim 35.

Regarding claim 38, Moroto discloses the input and output devices as claimed (see rejections of claims 34-35 above). Moroto also discloses an audio output device being operative to output programmed stories at designated times based on the estimated time of travel between the starting location and destination (column 5 lines 39-55, the speaker 17 of the voice output means gives voice guidance along the route, which can be considered a programmed story).

Moroto discloses a toy travel clock comprising an input device configured to accept an estimated time of travel between a start and destination and an output device configured to display an indication of an estimated distance traveled, which is determined by calculating a time traveled by determining a difference between a start and current time, dividing the time traveled by the estimated time of travel between the starting location and destination to determine a fraction of time traveled that is equal to the estimated distance traveled, the toy travel clock coupled to a navigation system display as recited in claim 46 (column 5 lines 16-39, lines 65-67 and column 6 lines 1-31; column 12 lines 7-41).

Regarding claim 48, Moroto discloses the input and output devices as claimed (see rejections of claim 46 above). Moroto also discloses an audio output device being operative to output programmed stories at designated times based on the estimated time of travel between the starting location and destination (column 5 lines 39-55, the speaker 17 of the voice output means gives voice guidance along the route, which can be considered a programmed story).

Moroto discloses a toy travel clock comprising an input device configured to accept an estimated time of travel between a starting location and destination, an output device configured to display an indication of an estimated distance traveled and a storage module that stores at least one known destination having an associated known total distance wherein the input device is configured to accept a respective known destination (column 5 lines 16-39, lines 65-67 and column 6 lines 1-31; column 12 lines 7-41), as recited in claim 49.

Regarding claim 50 Moroto discloses a clock display indicating a current time (see figure 8 set date/time option).

Regarding claims 51-52 Moroto discloses the toy travel clock is a stand alone device and wherein the toy is coupled to a navigation system display (column 5 lines 16-28).

Regarding claims 53-54 Moroto discloses further comprising an audio output device. This audio output device outputs programmed stories at designated times based on the estimated time of travel between the starting location and destination (column 5 lines 39-55, the speaker 17 of the voice output means gives voice guidance along the route, which can be considered a programmed story)

Regarding claim 55, Moroto discloses known destination is associated with a stored known estimated time of travel between the known starting location and destination (column 5 lines 16-39).

Regarding claims 5-6, see rejections of claims 34-35 above.

Regarding claim 7, Moroto discloses a clock display indicating the current time (see figure 8 set date/time option).

Regarding claims 8 and 10, Moroto discloses the toy travel clock is a stand alone device and the toy travel clock is coupled to a navigation system display (column 5 lines 16-29).

Art Unit: 3722

Regarding claims 9 and 11, Moroto provides a display means which would encompass a gaming display and video display.

Regarding claims 12 and 13, see rejections of claims 53-54 above.
